

What are Parents Saying?

I think the Catechesis of the Good Shepherd fosters a spiritual awakening in children of this age because it inspires an awe and reverence for God. We are grateful for our daughter's opportunity to celebrate God's presence in her life in this way.

A wonderful program! My son is developing a relationship with God based on Catholic teachings in an environment of openness and discovery.

Our daughter enjoys being able to choose her activities and speaks fondly of the prayer corner.

My children are usually in a very positive mood at the end of the session and are in no hurry to leave!

As a trained catechist and parent, I have had the privilege of observing my own children grow and develop a closer and deeper relationship with God. There is a certain peace and joy that shines even more brightly upon their return from the atrium.

The peaceful, reflective nature of the instruction and time spent with the materials invites the children to build a personal, inquisitive relationship with their Creator and Saviour.

The array of child size materials enable the children to learn the meaning behind the bible stories and the many rich symbols we have in the Catholic Church.

My child can name certain objects in the church. He seems to enjoy his class and I sense he feels he is part of the parish community.

My son now talks to God on his own, in prayer that is sparked from his spirit.

Both my children simply love it. They play "atrium" at home and involve the rest of the kids. It is very important to them to go every week.
